

NEW YORK SUNSET:

An Evening Conversation

Ted: This art work reminds me of the Billy Joel's "New York State of Mind."

Terri: Yeah – things are strangely impersonal, fuzzy, & disconnected.

Kris: New York is naturally surreal. It represents the wonderful absurdity of America, and to some extent the world.

Sam: To many it represents a bomb target. Perhaps the whole city should be under water?

Tim: If global warming continues, it will be.