

BAMBOO:

Some thoughts about neural plasticity and flexibility

An-Yi: This poem stinks of Taoism.

Daiki: (sniffing comically). Really? I don't smell anything odd.

Bhāraté: (laughing). Yeah, perhaps you are too dull?

Chariya: I think that An-Yi is saying that too much ideology can taint our experience.

- T Newfields

Begun: 1995 in Shizuoka, Japan ≡ Finished: 2016 in New Taipei, Taiwan

