

DIGITAL INTEGRATION:

Some Thoughts about Trans-Human Existence

Singularity points
to a strange paradox:
to sustain so many humans
on such a small planet
we might need sum
thing that's human-not.

We were engineered
fer jungles & adapted to desert plains -
nut for mega-sized groups:
that's too much data
fer our tiny breins.

Will we kreate synthetic gods
& bekum recycled slaves?

Or will we acknowledge
Some Higher Power
(in ways unimagined)
is already at play?

Nadya: Digital integration: is that not the ultimate form of tyranny?

Liao: You use words without understanding their meaning. In such a case, how can there be any meaningful reply?

Nadya: (scratching her head while laughing) Gee, you certainly know how to cut a conversation short. . .

- T Newfields

Begun: 2003 in Nagoya, Japan / Finished: 2021 in Yokohama, Japan

