

How Weird: Out of the Box of Expectations

Wan-Sze: (imitating the style of the poem) I'z tired ah hearing duh word 'amazin'...

Nadia: Yeah, most people are bombarded by so many 'amazing' claims that it gets hard to believe anything. In an age of steroid capitalism, discourse often degenerates into advertising.

Kasim: (raising his eyebrows) Well, Yet isn't this a poem about moving beyond words? Doesn't it extol the value of action?

Will: Using words to move beyond words... the irony is almost beautiful!

- T Newfields

Begun: 1998 in Manchester, England ☆ Finished: 2018 in Yokohama, Japanese

