

How Weird: Out of the Box of Expectations

WINGED DREAMS:

A conversation about nocturnal portents

Wan-Sze: Some dreams seem to summon us . . .

Will: Yes, there's a reason dreams are said to have wings. They're messengers.

Nadia: Yet I've heard some persons also have the power to summon their dreams and move between the dream world and so-called real world mysteriously.

Kasim: (coughing slightly) We should be careful when humans talk of power: all sorts of mischief happens when we start to think that humans have any real power. God alone is Great.

- T Newfields

Begun: 1997 in Shizuoka, Japan ☆ Finished: 2020 in Shizuoka, Japan

